Abstract:

Introduction: Coronavirus is a virus that emerged in Wuhan China (December-2019). On September 29th 2020, there was 33.249.563 confirmed cases and 1.000.040 deaths. In TCM, coronavirus infection is classified as external pathogenic factor invasion. According to a previous study of the author, more than 90% of the 409 patients analyzed have chakras energy deficiency. Purpose: The purpose of this study is to demonstrate that the energy of the chakras is important to maintain the functioning of the organs, circulation of the energy on the five massive organs. Demonstrate how the lack of this energy could be leading to the complications associated with coronavirus infection, and not by the viral infection in itself. Methods: A clinical case report of a 42-year-old male patient, layer and work on the military. He was diagnosed with chakras energy deficiencies in November of 2019, and was performing treatment for replenishment of the chakras energy. In May 2020, the patient returned, reported to have symptoms of redness on the face and neck, when he went to bathroom to check on the redness, he fainted for the period of five minutes. He was taken to the emergency, exams were performed and nothing was found. He also reported shortness of breath. The patient had no cough and no fever. He received treatment based on the reasoning of traditional Chinese medicine, through the Five Elements theory. The shortness of breath was associated with deficiency of the Kidney or the second chakra. The previous measurement had shown deficiency in 7 of the 7 chakras. The patient was oriented to increase the water intake to improve the energy of the Kidney, and treatment was started with homeopathy medications, to replenish the energy of the chakras, according to the theory of the author entitled Constitutional Homeopathy of the Five Elements based on Traditional Chinese Medicine, on concentration of 1000CH, as he had taken 30CH and 200CH of the homeopathy (Natrium Muriaticum, Phosphorus, Sulphur, Calcarea Carbonica, Silicia). Medication for taking out Heat retention were also recommended, according to traditional Chinese medicine (Mercurio solubilis 200CH and Aconitum 6CH) as well as Chinese dietary counseling. After, it was found that the patient had been in contact with three other people who have coronavirus infection and died from the complications. Results: The patient presented great improvement of all symptoms, on the following day of the start of the medication, not needing hospitalization. Conclusion: When treating patients with chakras energy deficiencies it is important to be careful with the recommendation of high-concentrated medications, because according to the Arndt-Schultz law, high-concentrated medication will harm the vital energy even further, leading to increase the internal Heat, that is comprehended as the inflammatory process in Western medicine and increasing the risk of having intravascular coagulation, myocardial infarction, renal insufficiency and respiratory insufficiency due to the lack of energy of the chakras that is responsible for the proper functioning of these organs.
